THURSDAY, MAY 27.

For a man who is so much "arrogant" as Mr. Blaine, the democrats are putting themselves to a good deal of trouble in making a war upon him.

Brooks, the astronomer, has found another comet. There is nothing which this country so little needs as comets. They are not worth the finding.

The cashier of a Baltimore bank has just died at the age of 88, after a long illness. He was one of the best of his kind, and his death is a great loss to the community.

The French cabinet, by a vote of 6 to 5, on Tuesday, adopted the principle of the expulsion of the Orleans Princes. A bill providing for their expulsion will be submitted to the chamber of deputies.

Mrs. Kief, widow of the dead Canadian rebel, died at her home in St. Vital, Manitoba, Monday, after an illness of two months. She was buried Wednesday, in the Catholic cemetery of St. Boniface.

The eruptions of Mount Atna, in Sicily, have greatly increased, and the destruction of the town of Nicolosi now seems inevitable. The entire district is enveloped in darkness, and showers of stones are continually falling.

The south is making progress on the dueling question. A North Carolinian has declined to fight a duel, because he is a church member, a state officer and a poor man with a family. He also declines because "the custom has become obsolete, and is generally regarded as ridiculous and foolish, as well as unlawful." He states, however, that he will have no hesitation in defending himself if attacked.

An interesting experiment in skin grafting is now being conducted in San Francisco. The patient was badly burned five months ago by an explosion. His limbs and hands were covered with huge sores which refused to heal. Skin grafting has been resorted to, and fully fifty pieces of flesh from relatives of the sufferer have been grafted. The flesh from the thigh of a large chicken was also grafted successfully. The case is one of the worst ever known, and the results awaited with interest by physicians.

The Chicago Evening Journal is authority for the statement that one of Chicago's chief architects says: "At the opening of the season the indications were that new buildings to the value of $25,000,000 would be erected in the city during the present year. The effect of the ill-timed labor strikes has been to postpone many of these projected improvements indefinitely. It will put up $15,000,000 worth of new buildings this year we will do well. Last year over $20,000,000 worth of new buildings were put up."

"The value of ostrich feathers," says the St. James Gazette, "has long been declining, until the price of 'prime whites' has sunk from £50 to £10 per pound. Indeed, at a sale last month at Cape Town 1,000 pounds of mixed feathers only realized a total of £3,017, values having fallen 15 per cent. from previous sales. This serious depreciation may be attributed to various causes, among which, probably, glutted markets, the dictates of fashion, general depression and previously exaggerated prices are the chief. The golden dreams indulged in by the cape farmers a decade since have been rudely dispelled, and they are now returning to their first love, wool-farming, which during the ostrich craze had been somewhat neglected."

The American Congress of churches convened at Cleveland, Ohio, Tuesday. The general management of the congress is in the hands of a council of twenty-five in which the various churches of America are unofficially represented by clergy, men or laymen or both. The council aims, by holding public meetings from time to time, to make provision for a full and frank discussion of the subjects in which the Christians of America are interested, including those ecclesiastical questions upon which Christians differ. Governor J. B. Foraker, of Ohio, opened the congress by an address. "Religion in Our Public Schools" was discussed by Rev. Dr. S. Stevens, of Adrian, Mich., Rev. Dr. Gilmore, Catholic Bishop of Cleveland; Rev. J. Coleman Adams, of Chicago, and Rev. Dr. Leonard W. Bacon of Philadelphia.

Ex-Minister E. B. Washburne, whose home is in Chicago, writes to a friend in Geneva that he has just completed the compilation of his 100 volumes of autobiographical correspondence received by him during his political life, embracing a period of more than a quarter of a century. The arrangement and binding of these volumes required what was equivalent to the work of one man for nearly two years. The correspondence in each book is alphabetically arranged, and embraces letters from presidents, ex-presidents, members of congress, foreign ministers and other distinguished persons in the United States; also from many European statesmen and dignitaries, including presidents of France, Queen Victoria, King William of Prussia, Prince Bismarck and others. The correspondence is a valuable political history in itself, besides being the largest and finest collection of autograph letters ever presented in this country.

The sixth day's proceedings of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church South, at Augusta, Georgia, Wednesday, was devoted to the discussion of the question of evolution. Dr. George D. RELIGION AND LABOR.

JOHN JARRETT AND HENRY GEORGE LECTURE THE PREACHERS.

And Give Them Points on the Relation of the Church to the Workingman—A Proposal to Abolish the Typographical Union—There is Necessary in Organization—Favorable Determination.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 27.—Since the arrival of the delegates to the special convocation of the Knights of Labor, a number of plans in addition to the five causes of complaint calling for adjustment enumerated by Mr. Powderly in his call have been received. One of these plans, emanating from a member of the order, from Allentown, Pa., who has prepared an address upon the matter, is to organize the subject of the government regulating the railroads. The address also deals with the project of an arbitration board. An effort will be made to secure a hearing for that gentleman.

Mr. Hammond, a prominent knight, in speaking with a delegate Wednesday evening gave it as his opinion that the only way to solve the problem is the division system. "Soldiers, when they go out on a whaling or fishing expedition, receive a certain percentage of the proceeds. They know when their contracts are made they stand the same chance the owner of the vessel does, and should the expedition prove a failure they know what to expect and accept the inevitable without complaint. This same system, I think, applicable to a considerable extent in factories and other industrial institutions. I am in favor of arbitration, but I do not think that congress will ever be able to formulate a plan to successfully arbitrate differences between the employer and his employees. There are so many different branches of industry that no one or committee of men appointed by congress would be able to deal intelligently with all of them." Mr. Hammond also follows in the one-man rule theory. "Give him all the assistants he may need, but let the head of the organization have supreme power. This is the way to success. The many heads, is never productive of the best results."

Mr. Richard Trevelick, chief organizer for the Knights of Labor, when asked what he thought of the recall of the organizations' committee said: "Much of the trouble in the order arising from rapidly increasing membership and the installation of our assemblies is due to poor organization. I met an organizer a few weeks ago under the influence of liquor. On my inquiry where he was going he said he was going to organize an assembly of striking blacks and Hungarians. Now this is positively forbidden, and I think that the rules of the order were that no man could be admitted to membership while on a strike. He organized the assembly, however, but owing to my knowledge of the affair, it never received a charter. Much of the kind of work has been done of which the executive officers had no knowledge, and to this source can be attributed much of the existing trouble throughout the country. Mr. Powderly alone has the power of issuing these commissions, and to avoid creating hard feelings he has decided to call them in from the chief organizer down."

A scheme is also on foot to take the typographical union into the fold of the knights as a district assembly. This movement is meeting with the enthusiastic approval of the local union, and their delegate has been instructed to vote in favor of it. The business of the assembly is being transacted very slowly, and it is probable that an adjournment will not be taken until late next week. Mr. Powderly says that all matters must be straightened up, if it takes a month.

John Jarrett, ex-president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers; James Redpath, and Henry George of New York, are in the city. Their presence here at this time is regarded as an endorsement of the popular interest taken in the convention. Messrs. Jarrett and George delivered addresses on the labor question to the American congress of churches, at New York, Wednesday night. Mr. Jarrett was invited to address the congress but declined. Mr. Jarrett said: "I have spoken on the labor question a great many times, but I never before addressed the workingmen in a meeting of this kind. Workingmen are as a rule suspicious of the church, and I have no doubt they have cause to be. I once knew of a church where workingmen were not very little attention, because they could not contribute as much as rich folk toward the support of the ministry and other church expenses. The church takes these people that they will go to heaven when they die, but they want a little of that heaven here if they can get it. If the church will show the people that the man who robs the poor workingman has no place in heaven, the church will have the support of the workingman. Let them understand that Jesus sympathizes with the down-trodden and the oppressed; that he cured every man who did not devote his life to the welfare of others and say to them we are brothers."

Henry George said among other things: "The work is moving, and nothing shows how rapid this movement is more than a gathering of the masses. The workingman is now on the world-wide movement—the man who is hoping and struggling, almost without expectation—everywhere distrust the church; distrust it with a bitterness that almost grows into open hostility. Americans are capitalists and nihilists are fighting for the same end because they seek the kingdom of God on earth. They are not going at it in the right way, but they all have the same end in view. Is not the Christian church the support and bulwark of the social conditions that are? Out of that comes the bitter hostility. Religion has little to do with God; it has to do with the support of the social conditions. The poor and down-trodden workman distrust the church because it has much to say to kindness, but when it comes to a specific thing where is the church? What is the religion of the great mass of people that are preachers? Kindness and generosity can cure the condition which condemns large masses of people to a life of misery. Religion has not one word to say to the denial of the existence of our common fathers to the rights of the earth and the promise to them of a heaven after death."

New Jersey Prohibition Republicans. Trenton, N. J., May 27.—The conference of New Jersey Republicans called to a convention to force the Republican state convention to embody a stiff temperance plank in its platform, met Wednesday morning. Plans were made for 100 delegates present. Hon. Albert Griffin of Kansas, who was present, was introduced as the originator of the anti-saloon movement in this country. After an eloquent address by Mr. Griffin, the convention on permanent organization reported for president E. A. Armstrong, speaker of the house, Mr. Armstrong, in taking the chair, spoke at length, giving his views in sympathy with the movement, which he believed would strengthen the Republican party.
